

Dr. Seteney Shami is an anthropologist from Jordan who obtained her B.A. from the American University of Beirut and her M.A. and Ph.D from University of California, Berkeley. After teaching and setting up a graduate dept. of anthropology at Yarmouk University, Jordan, she moved in 1996 to the regional office of the Population Council in Cairo as director of the Middle East Awards in Population and the Social Sciences (MEAwards). In July 1999, she joined the Social Science Research Council in New York as program director for the program on the Middle East and North Africa and also the program on Eurasia (until 2010). She has been a visiting Professor at U.C. Berkeley, Georgetown University, University of Chicago, Stockholm University and the Swedish Collegium for Advanced Study in the Social Sciences (Uppsala).

Dr. Shami's fieldwork has focused on Jordan, Egypt, Turkey and the North Caucasus. Her research interests center on issues of ethnicity and nationalism in the context of globalization, urban politics and state-building strategies, and population displacement and trans-national mobility.

Dr. Shami coordinated the steering committee that undertook the background work for the establishment of the Arab Council for the Social Sciences and also acted as a (part-time) founding director between January 2010 – April 2012. For a full CV, click here
